

RZN E2E Phase-1 Synthetic Judgment (base-14 Helvetica)

Synthetic test document generated by the RZN end-to-end Phase-1 pipeline check. It exercises source ingest, parse, and archival only, and contains no real legal content.

The petitioner contended that the right to privacy is intrinsic to the right to life and personal liberty. The respondent argued that reasonable restrictions apply under due process of law and the doctrine of proportionality.

Held: the synthetic court records these paragraphs so that the document parser produces multiple distinct passages, which are then archived into the raw payload store as compressed JSONL with a stable content digest.
